

Robert Tuñón announced as Newest Owner and Principal at Rothschild Doyno Collaborative

Rothschild Doyno Collaborative is proud to announce that Robert Tuñón has been elevated to Principal and Owner at Rothschild Doyno Collaborative, an architecture and urban design firm. He joins Partners Daniel Rothschild, Ken Doyno, Kate Tunney, Geoff Campbell, Mike Gwin, and Melanie Buzgan Dower as part of the ownership team.

As a Principal and registered architect, Robert supports clients and communities as they improve their organizations, reimagine their properties, and have positive impacts in their neighborhoods. As a project team leader, Robert promotes collaborative environments where team members and stakeholders can meaningfully contribute to the design process. His emphasis on sustainability, resiliency, and social equity helps individuals and groups as they seek to envision a better future where all can thrive.

Robert joined Rothschild Doyno Collaborative in 2013 and has worked on the nationally-awarded Ohringer Arts affordable artist housing redevelopment, the Second Harvest Community Thrift Store, and the rebuild at the Tree of Life Synagogue. Driven by his passion for community service, Robert is the recently appointed Mayor of Etna, PA and serves as the Board Chair of the Etna Community Organization. As a mixed-race Hispanic person and a dual citizen of the US and Panamá, he is proud to be contributing to a more diverse architectural profession in Pittsburgh. He is a Co-founder and Board member of the Minority Architects of Pittsburgh Scholarship (MAPS) and an active member of the National Organization of Minority Architects (NOMA).
